Crocodile in Jail

Yesterday the police in northern Australia caught a crocodile that had attacked local fishermen.

It was late in the evening when the police could catch the crocodile, so they had to take it to the police station. The crocodile had to spend the whole night in a cell, because there was no other place to put it.

The crocodile, which was 2.4 metres long, had gone after the fishermen when they put their boats into the water. The policemen in the small city said that the crocodile was not very easy to catch. They had to try many times before they could get it and take it to the police station. “But we looked after it as well as we could”, Sergeant Pepper says. “We kept it on a wet blanket and hosed it regularly with water. And we covered its eyes so it wouldn’t be upset”.

The next morning the police called a crocodile farm. A park ranger told them to take the crocodile there. It wasn’t an easy ride, but at least the crocodile wasn’t aggressive any more.

Now everybody hopes the crocodile will be happy in its new home.
